Commissioners:

We are writing to strongly urge you to eliminate Harlequin Duck hunting in Oregon. Biologists estimate that a maximum of a few hundred Harlequins nest in Oregon. We are at the southern edge of their range. It is shameful to allow any of these rare treasures of our state to be hunted. Please lower the bag limit to zero.

Thank you for your consideration and please keep us posted.

General Public

Hello Commissioners and Brandon,

I would like to make a comment on the duck season zone 1 season timing. It has been my experience hunting western Oregon the last 20 years that there is more duck migration and better hunting in early November than late October. For this reason I would suggest the closed dates a week earlier Oct 26,27,28 instead of Nov 2,3,4.

Thanks, Ian Wolf

As a long-time birder I urge you to enact a "bag limit" on Harlequin Ducks of 0.

I have great sympathy with duck hunters; they are among the oldest and best conservationists in the United States and all Americans owe them a continuing debt of gratitude. I myself purchase a "Duck Stamp" every year. Nevertheless, Oregon is at the southern end of the range of Harlequin Ducks and their number in our state is not large. Therefore I urge you again to set the limit at 0.

Thank you very much.
