A GUIDE TO ACCESSIBLE OUTDOOR RECREATION AREAS THROUGHOUT THE STATE.

OREGON FOR ONE AND ALL

OREGON'S GREAT OUTDOORS offer a world of things to see and do—from fish hatcheries to wildlife areas to state parks to national forests. This guide is designed to make many of those sites easier to find and use.

A GUIDE TO THE GUIDE

The sites in this guide describe facilities with a level of accessibility or usability according to the standards of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA).

The general location of each site is indicated by a numbered box { 2 } on the fold-out state map and detailed regional map. Match the number with the appropriate site listing. Each listing includes a brief description of the site, driving directions, contact phone number, services available and accessibility of services.

Meets Americans with Disabilities Act Accessibility Guidelines (ADAAG) for barrier-free access or use.*	Significant access. Some individuals may need assistance.	Doesn't meet exact ADA standards, but can be used by most persons with disabilities.	Site doesn't necessarily meet ADA standards, but can be used by most persons with disabilities.

*May not be accessible to all with disabilities due to topography and the primitive nature of the site.

Although this information was current and accurate at time of publication, changing conditions may affect the availability or accessibility of the site. Visitors are urged to call the site directly for specific information. Note, too, that this is not intended to be a complete list of accessible outdoor recreation sites throughout Oregon.

The Roosevelt elk appear silently, a ghost-herd hugging the near edge of a meadow. So close, and yet so wild. Not far away, cutthroat trout flash in a bright stretch of coastal stream. This is Oregon's northwest corner, a land of windswept beach, life-rich estuary, wet mountain and green meadow.

The snows of yesteryear spill down this western slope of the Cascades, churned into some of the world's finest habitat for fish and those who seek them. The land, flattened now, sweeps into the regular rows of Oregon's garden, refreshed here and there with nutrient- and bird-rich wetlands.

TO PROTECT AND ENHANCE A LIVING OREGON

The mission of the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife is to protect and enhance Oregon's fish and wildlife and their habitats for use and enjoyment by present and future generations. That mission extends to non-hunted and non-commercial species.

It also includes serving humans who seek to enjoy our state's natural wealth. Each year, the department handles 900,000 fishing licenses and tags, and 1.3 million applications for hunting licenses, tags and controlled hunts.

Permits, licenses, applications, reservations and informative materials are available from the department's regional and district offices. Helpful information is also available on the department's website at MyODFW.com.
